

MARCO PIZZI

I'm a PhD Student of political science at Perugia University (Italy).
I'm interested in the connections between society and environment, considered both as physical landscape and social relations background.
My current research focus is on local tourism and in my latest studies I analysed natural disasters and their social implications. I've studied the subject in depth taking part in the Perugia University Earthquake Observatory, from 2017 to 2019, with the Umbria Regional Council patronage.
